COUNCIL IS KEPT BUSY WITH MANY ORDINANCES

License, Paving and Bond Issue Statutes Are Taken Up

COMPLAINTS ARE AIRED

People of Hill Section Appear Before Council---State Health Board Advises

An ordinance providing for a license tax to be collected from automobile trucks and like motor vehicles operating in the borough was presented at the regular monthly meeting of borough council Tuesday night, at which all the members of council were present. The ordinance passed first reading and was referred back to the ordinances committee for alteration and amendment.

Council also considered an ordinance for locating and opening a new street from Lincoln avenue to the road leading to Calvary cemetary, which is to be known as Durrall street. The ordinance passed first reading and was ordered printed and posted. In conjuction with this ordinance another ordinance for the erection of a bridge across Maple creek at the same place as the new street, was presented to council and it passed first reading.

The ordinance for the purchase of a small strip of property on Lincoln avenue near First street passed first reading. The object is to improve the dangerous curve in the street at this place. An ordinance for the paving of Tenth street from McKean avenue to Lincoln avenue passed first reading and was ordered printed and posted.

The ordirance for bringing before the people a bond issue for $75,000 for paving and a municipal building was presented to council, and passed first reading. No comment was made on the ordinance by members of council.

When an ordinance for vacating Fourth street from Lincoln avenue to the east side of Church alley was passed by council residents of that section who were present were quickly heard. Many objections were made. Council reconsidered their action passing the ordinance and instead passed an order for grading of Fourth street between the points named. Fourth street at this place is so steep that it is said to be impossible for teams to go up it. Council thought that by vacating it, they could save the wash from Fourth street and the streets above coming down to Lincoln avenue.

Persons living on First street between Lookout and Meadow avenues asked that a sewer be placed. This was put in charge of the street committee with power to act. Leopold Schwaed of Twelfth street and Crest avenue, complained to council that water from the sewer was getting into his water well. The matter was referred to the street committee for investigation and report. A communication from Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, state commissioner of health, dealing with the condition of the sewer on Crest avenue between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, was read to council. The matter was placed in charge of the street committee with the instructions that an

Will Re-Open Star Theatre

Tom B. Cowan Sets Friday as Date---House is Thoroughly Renovated

Thoroughly renovated and improved as to interior arrangements the Star theatre will be reopened on Friday afternoon by Manager Tom B. Cowan, the owner. Several months ago the Star theatre was closed by Mr. Cowan when informed by the state that in some particulars his theatre did not come up to the necessary standard. Since that time he has rearranged the interior and has placed the operating booth over the ticket office.

TOWERS WILL BE IMMENSE

Concrete Stations for Cable Line Now Being Completed

ALL AT EIGHTH STREET

The West Penn Electric company has just completed the erection of a concrete tower, re-enforced with steel, on this side of the river near the warehouse of the Macbeth-Evans glass factory. The purpose of this tower is to support one end of a high tension wire, which will cross the river at Eighth street.

This tower is 112 feet high. At the foundation it is 40 by 40 feet. At the base it is 12 feet while at the top it is 18 inches square. The tower is built with 12 inch walls up to within 18 feet of the top. From there on it is solid.

The excavation is almost completed for an anchor tower which will be built near the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad company at Eighth street. It will be 12 by 30 feet at the base and will run up to a heighth of about 50 feet. When this tower is completed a third tower will be erected on the hill side above the Pennsylvania and Lake Erie railroad tracks on the west side of the Monongahela river. This tower is to be about 60 feet high.

The weight on the tops of this tower will be considerable as there will be a span of about 1,100 feet of cable resting on them. The power which will be carried across the river by this high tension wire will be used in Monessen and other towns on the west side of the river. J. W. Nye is superintending the work.

DONORA JOYRIDING GIVEN DEATH BLOW

Up-to-Minute Plans Adopted to Prevent Speeding---Borough is One Place Where Justice Does Not Seem a Travesty

Donora has adopted a system of preventing joy riding in the borough that has worked to the utter discomfiture of several autoists and led to a warning being issued in Monongahela that indicates a case of "sour grapes" on the part of some caught.

Donora's up-to-the minute plan is destined to catch up every one who fractures the speed laws of the commonwealth. On the asphalt street between Tenth and Eleventh streets in Donora, it is stated a man with an unassuming air—one of the meek-looking, hen-pecked variety—is placed. Though autoists don't know it he has a stop-watch and is equipped with all information as to best methods for its use.

The autoist gaily speeds through. The next thing he knows his license number has been noted down and he is summoned to appear in Donora and pay the fine and costs enforced for speeding. There is no method of slipping by—here is one place where justice is not a travesty. The total amount usually is about $13.25. After autoists feel that two or three times they stay away from Donora or else drive with more care than is affected in other spots. Justice of the Peace Frank B. Hambry is the gentleman who usually collects the fine.

ATTACK WATER COMPANY REQUEST INVESTIGATION

Alleging that the water supplied by the Westmoreland Water company is "impure, unwholesome and unfit for domestic use," and that the rates charged are "unjust, unreasonable, excessive and discriminatory." the borough of Greensburg and various citizens of the borough have lodged a complaint with the Public Service Commission at Harrsiburg, requesting an investigation.

Beach Gets Borough Aid

Council Hears Reports Then Donates $200 for Local Institution

Evidencing their belief in the benefits of a bathing beach, Charleroi borough council at their meeting Tuesday evening appropriated the sum of $200 to the institution. The appropriation came after John B. Schafer, one of the founders spoke to council. He presented the final statement of receipts and disbursements. Councilmen present expressed themselves as greatly in favor of a bathing beach

ANXIETY FOR THE TOURISTS

Financial Conditions of Local People Abroad Causes Worry

WIKSTROMS IN SWEDEN

Among those from Charleroi who are in Europe at the present time are Annetta, Ingeborg and Ralph Wikstrom, daughters and son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Wikstrom of Crest avenue. They are in Gottenberg, Sweden, having left Charleroi some weeks ago for that point. Their parents are not alarmed concerning their welfare at the present time, Sweden having declared its neutrality in the present European struggle. The only trouble that is feared concerns finances. This trouble is being experienced by practically every American abroad. Mr. Wikstrom is endeavoring to get a cablegram through in an effort to see that the three of the family abroad are supplied.

George Newton of Charleroi is in Ireland, but it is not believed he will get within the war zone at all. J. J. Beerens, the shoe dealer of Charleroi sailed for Belgium on July 18 and presumably he landed at his destination there.

MAN AND HIS WIFE BOTH DRAW FINES

A. Baker and his wife were given hearings Tuesday night before Burgess S. L. Woodward on charges of disorderly conduct. It was shown by the testimony of the parties concerned and by a witness that it was just a family quarrel. A fine of $1 and costs was assessed in each case.

Licensed To Wed.

A marriage license has been granted in Fayette county to Wilbur Jennings of Charleroi and Miss Bertha Matthews of Percy.

SPEERS IN SHAPE TO DO WORK

Financial Condition of Borough Good---Money on Hand Nearly Sufficient

Speers borough is laying plans for the paving of State street from the Belle Vernon-Speers river bridge to the improved state road, a distance of an ordinary Charleroi block, and two paving ordinances have passed second reading. The ordinances will be taken up September 2 for third and final reading, and with that arrangements will be made for letting the contract and having the work started. That the ordinance will pass finally there sems no doubt and that all efforts will be made to have the paving completed before winter is certain.

The ordinances were introduced at the regular monthly meeting of the Speers council Tuesday night. They were read and at once passed two readings. The street to be paved is the principal one in Speers borough. One of the ordinances is for grading and the other for paving.

Speers borough is declared to be in good shape for taking care of expense ineidental to paving at this time. It has $1,800 on hand to begin work, not counting the taxes received from this year's assessment. This sum will be nearly sufficient, it is believed to do the borough's share of the work. Property holders will bear two-thirds of the cost.

Speers has an assessed valuation of $142,000. Its rate of taxation is 21 mills of a total, 19 mills being for borough and 11 for school purposes. The population approximates 450 people.

It is estimated that the total cost of the improvement planned will be close to $6,000, although engineers have not as yet figured on it. The figure is calculated on estimates on Charleroi street paving.

BATHING BEACH PARK PROJECT IS SUGGESTED

Since the establishment of a bathing beach near Second street talk has ben started as to the feasibilities of the establishment of a public park fronting the river at that point. It has been pointed out that the borough might either purchase or lease the land, and then set out trees and otherwise beautify the site. The idea so far has not been seriously considered, but is simply being talked of.

A WAR WITHOUT REASON

Some years ago a writer in one of our magazines discussing the probabilities of war stated in his opinion that the wars of the future would be those fought for human liberty says the Washington Observer. The fighting in Mexico has been in the main based on a desire for better conditions. None can blame the peons of the southern republic for fighting when life was hardly worth living, under the conditions which existed there. Of course the condition of these people was used by other interests in a war either for conquest or wealth. But without the underlying basic cause these wars would never have gained the popular support which they did. But how strongly in contrast is the war in Europe to those pictured by the writer to be waged for human liberty. The Philadelphia North American describes the situation well when it says:

Yet after a race-history which orthodoxy measures in thousands of centuries and science in millions of years, the works of man at his highest development could not withstand the primitive instinct of tribal jealousy.

For behind this war that threatens to devastate a continent there is just that prehistoric passion. No one has the hardihood to maintain that the nations are flinging themselves into conflict for the sake of any great principle of justice.

Servia alone has a cause that seems to be founded upon right; but she is already lost in the welter, submerged beneath the warring Powers that fight for greed, for pride, for revenge, for hate, for the inextinguishable lust of national aggrandizement.

What does this mean but that our boasted civilization has broken down. That there has been at least a reversion from which it will climb upward again only by slow and painful degrees?

For the crime is Europe's, but the penalty will be laid upon the whole world. In this country and elsewhere there will be benefits of temporarily increased trade and prosperity, while within the zone of the war's influence a plague of poverty and suffering must be suffered; but eventually humanity itself will be called upon to pay the appalling account.

At any time during the last thirty years action might conceivably have been taken to avert the disaster. Now there seems but one remedy—violance. Selfish statesmanship has stimulated national antagonisms and race prejudices to fever and it can be allayed only by the letting of blood.

How far this dreadful operation must go none can now foretell. Far-seeing men predict that the coming war will be the bloodiest in history—and the last.

If the second part of this prophecy shall prove true, the price will not be too great for the world to pay.

The poor people of the European monarchies of Russia, Austria and Germany are fighting for the pride, the selfishness and the avarice of their kings and emperors. They will give their lives and properties and their families and dependents will suffer want, destitutionand privation for years to come in order that the ambitions of corrupt rulers may be satisfied. The New Lork World aptly expresses the idea when it says:

The everlasting wars south of the Danube are an indictment of the religion as well as the civilization of Europe. No question is presented in the Balkan States that cannot be settled by reason. Nothing but avarice, brutality and crime, some of it dynastic, much of it shamelessly commercial, prevents a solution of the Near-Eastern question without firing a shot.

A sober second thought by monarchs and politicians and war gamblers generally may yet stay the slaughter. Failing in that, the one hope must be that the conflict will prevail until it upsets thrones and empires, destroys war lords and war parties, wrecks war speculators and war profiteers and involves irretrievable ruin war industries and war finance, with all their corrupt and perfidious agents.

EXPERIENCE TEACHES

It is somewhat significant that the countries of Europe recently engaged in war are doing their utmost to keep out of the present conflict. The chief nations thus showing sense are Italy and Turkey.

People are forgetful. Germany, with its present high state of cultivation, has forgotten apparently the cost of the terribly devasting wars in its centuries of history. The same thing might be said of Austria. Servia is in a position where it can't help itself.

France is in much the same position as Germany. England feels itself forced to take sides. Europe has been preparing for this present war for years. It has been frequently predicted, but nobody thought it would come so suddenly or be at once so inflaming. It looks as though the cost had not been counted except by the countries recently familiar with present day war. Those countries are to be admired for their stand.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Did you ever stop to consider the immense value of the little mark of punctuation, the comma?" asked a man the other day who had just had some sad experience where it bore a special significance because of the lack of it.

He went on. "Yes, I know," he said," the comma is overdone in some places, and I know that newspapers have an abhorrance of it when it comes to its excessive use, but one was left out of a paper I signed the other day that cost me a bunch of money. The meaning was entirely changed. It reminds me of a story I heard recently.

"At a woman's dinner toasts were given. The affair was particularly enjoyable, but something went wrong. One of the toasts ran, 'Woman! without her, man is a brute.' But the compositor in getting it ready for print misplaced the comma and left out the exclamation point so that it read: 'Woman without her man, is a brute.'"

This is a story of woman's tender heart and her readiness to forgive—and also inhumanity of man. Doubtless it has a moral.

Jimmy Allison met the hero the other night, says the Altoona Tribune. The hero said he had a thirst as long as the Boston post road and that he was no friend to a waiting policy. So they started out to quench it. It was the rush hour about Broadway and Forty-second street, New York. They visitel eight saloons—they visited one saloon three times—but they barely got inside of each one.

CAR TRAVELS IMPROPERLY; SLIGHT WRECK

A small street car wreck occurred at the lower end of the Fifth street switch on McKean avenue of the Pittsburg Railways tract Tuesday night at 10:10 o'clock when the upbound car split the switch and ran across the tracks hitting the north bound car.

Two windows were shattered and Motorman John Kress, who was running the upbound car was badly shaken up. He is able to work however. Street traffic was tied up for a short time

A number of Charleroi people are attending the races today and many more are contemplating going tomorrow. Today's program includes a 2:22 trot, a 2.30 trot, a 2:15 pace and a three-quarter mile dash.

"I won't drink unless I can sit down," said the hero.

At the ninth saloon Alison threw a splint and went to the stable. He said that if anyone had seen the hero and himself making dry faces at bars—in no case getting near enough to a bar to recognize the lightkeepe—that someone would have concluded that the two were of spurious, not to say destroyed, mentally. He said he had a position in the community to maintain, and that he, dadbing it, proposed to maintain it. The next day the hero chuckled over the telephone.

"The wife," said the hero, "had a trailer on me last night. And this guy reported that I went from saloon door to saloon door and opened each door and then retreated without taking a drink. He said that I had something on my mind—if I had a mind, which he did not concede—and that, anyhow, a gink who would act that way was harmless and he withdrew from the case. And my wife puts a kiss on me tonight. She says she wants to be forgiven.

"'I know now,' says she, 'that I have wronged you!'"

HOW SHE RETAINED YOUTH

Great Actress Had Set of Rules Which Seem Contrary to General Belief.

Modjeska, the famous Polish actress, who charmed our mothers and fathers, retained her youthful looks and spirit until middle life

When she was about fifty years old some one asked her the secret of keeping young.

"I take a hot bath every night," said the actress, "and a long, sound sleep. Then I eat a light breakfast, a hearty dinner at two, tea and bread at five and supper after the performance. I am a great believer in soap and water and plenty of sleep.

"After all, it is none of these outside aids that keeps one young. Keeping young inside is what counts."

Of course some persons would argue that a cold bath every morning and no supper in the middle of the night would lead to health and youthful looks. But Modjeska's advice goes to prove that every woman must work out a course of life that agrees with her and then stick to it. Her occupation and tastes and constitution must all be taken into account. Then her rule must be formulated, tried, corrected and lived up to.

Youth seemed to be hereditary with Modjeska. It is said that when her old mother—a simple mountaineer in Poland—was seventy-five her children took her a set of woolen underwear. The old lady wore the garments from morning till night. At night she cried, and asked to be allowed to take them off.

"But they are good for you," said the children.

"But," said the old woman, "if I wear those woolly things now, what shall I wear when I am old?"

Doctor Tells This.

Dr. Blevins sat quietly, listening to the yarns of a party seated at the fireside of the hospitable host M., occasionally sniffing the air, and impatiently awaiting his turn. At length, the stock of yarns of his voluble companions seemed to have become exhausted.

"Away back in an autumn of the early seventies," began the doctor, "the wild pigeons came in great numbers after the mast. I was riding along a country road, one late afternoon, when I came to a pigeon roost There were so many of these birds that their weight had bent the tree in which they were roosting to the ground; I thought I would stop and get a few of the birds. I hitched my horse to the branches of the treetop, but when I attempted to catch the birds they all flew away, letting the tree spring back into an upright position, and to my discomfiture, carrying my horse up, too. There he hung by the bridle in the treetop. I was puzzled. Presently an idea occurred to me. The pigeons had lighted on a tree that stood on the next hillside. I ran around to the far side of the tree and 'shooed' the birds. They flew back to the first tree, where my horse hung, and lighting on it again, bent it to the ground as before. I ran back, loosened the bridle, and got my horse

"Since that experience, I tell you I am always careful as to where I hitch my horse."

Ruled Consumption Infectious.

A novel case recently decided in Ireland was Gwynne vs Clarke in the Monaghan county court, where the defendant as executor of one Clarke was sued for damages because Clarke had obtained lodgings from the plaintiff under the false representation that he was not suffering from an infectious disease. Plaintiff asked Clarke at the time he applied if he didn't have consumption and the latter was admitted on his assurance that he had congestion of the lungs. He died later of consumption. The testimony at the trial showed that the plaintiff was unable to rent his lodgings for a long time because of Clarke's occupancy, but the defendant argued that consumption is not an infectious disease. The court held that what little authority existed on the point was entirely in plaintiff's favor and ruled that since Clarke falsely represented that he didn't have consumption he was liable to pay damages.

Matching Shirts.

The laundryman's bookkeeper inquired innocently why she was required to charge the gentleman at No. 63 a higher price for washing his shirts and collars than any other customer.

"Because he belongs to the small but troublesome group of gentlemen who insist that their shirts, collars and white ties shall be exactly the same shade of white and send a brand new tie along as a sample to wash by," said the proprietor.

"It is very difficult to get several pieces of linen to turn out the same shade in the wash, partly because they are not all the same quality of linen. A garment that is part cotton is apt to wash yellow, a coarse linen absorbs more blue than a fine linen. I agree with No. 63 that nothing looks worse than a collar, tie and shirt of different degrees of whiteness. But since he insists upon having them match he must pay for the experimenting required to make them match."—New York Times

The Upper Crust.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt, at a luncheon at Harbourview, her Newport villa, said of the nouveaux riches of Gotham:

DON'T MISTAKE THE CAUSE

Many Charleroi People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It.

Do you have backache?
Are you tired and worn out?
Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed?
Are the kidney secretions irregular?
Highly colored; contain sediment?
Likely your kidneys are at fault.
Weak kidneys give warning of distress.
Heed the warning; don't delay—
Use a tested kidney remedy.
Read this Charleroi testimony.

Matt Miller, 210 Second St., Charleroi, Pa., says: "While I was living in Marion, Ind., I had trouble from my back; it ached all the time. I had headaches and dizzy spells and the kidney secretions were discolored and profuse in passage. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me promptly. When I have weak kidneys now, Doan's Kidney Pills never fail to benefit me. I am always ready to recommend this remedy. The public statement I gave some years ago, still holds good."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Miller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

SHOWED INSTINCT OF SWANS

Birds Had Learned the Trick of Ringing a Bell to Get Their Supply of Food.

During a recent visit to the cathedral city of Wells, in Somersetshire, a Scotsman correspondent was witness of a curious incident. The Episcopal palace is surrounded, just as in olden times, by a wall and a moat, the haunt of swans, ducks, and other aquatic birds. The moat is crossed at the entrance to the palace grounds by a drawbridge with a battlemented gateway with towers, in one of which is the gatekeeper's lodge. From a bracket fixed in the wall of one of these towers overlooking the moat a bell is suspended, with a cord attached.

One afternoon about five o'clock, while watching the movements of the various birds in the water, the correspondent heard the ringing of a bell, and, on looking to see whence the sound came, he observed that one of the swans was vigorously pulling the cord evidently to attract attention. As no immediate notice was taken of its efforts, the impatient bird continued to ring the bell violently until there appeared at the window of the tower the wife of the gatekeeper, who threw out a quantity of food to the expectant waterfowl.

On making inquiries as to the origin of this interesting episode, the correspondent was told that a number of years ago a daughter of the bishop of Wells, being much interested in the birds inhabiting the moat, taught the swans to ring the bell at feeding-time, at five o'clock in the afternoon. This practice has been continued by successive families of swans down to the present day, and it would seem, therefore, as if the birds transmitted to their offspring the knowledge that when the cord was pulled the bell would ring and that food would follow.

DEMAND FOR FURS ENORMOUS

That the World's Supply Will in Time Be Exhausted May Be Considered Certain.

The fur trade in the far north is still on very much the same basis as when Cartier and Champlain first traded beads and knickknacks with the wondering chiefs of Quebec. A million and a half dollars' worth of merchandise goes north from Edmonton, Canada, every spring to be exchanged for the two and a half millions of fur that come back in midsummer and autumn. So far as the fur trade in America is concerned, the traders claim that there is no perceptible falling off as yet; that, in fact, more fur is being brought to market each year. But in Russia, Germany, Japan and Australia there is a general decrease in the supply. In the past 20 years the world's catch of the 12 most important furs has fallen off from five per cent to 700 per cent., while the demand for the more expensive varieties has multiplied enormously. The ceaseless effort to satisfy this demand can have but one end, and it is only logical to expect that even the great game preserves of the Canadian north and Alaska will in time be hunted bare.

National Pride.

The belief that all foreigners are inferior to one's own people is not peculiar to the so-called civilized nations. Professor Sumner of Yale used to call this national egotism "ethnocentrism," and cited an instance of it from a message sent south by a native Greenlander, extolling his land and its inhabitants as greatly superior to the countries and races of white men. In the Journal of Religious Psychology the anthropologist Crantz is quoted as saying:

"The Greenlanders consider themselves as the only civilized nation in the world. They are far superior in their own estimation to the Europeans, who supply an inexhaustible subject of raillery for their social parties. They do not appreciate the attitude of arrogant superiority adopted by many white men in their intercourse with so-called savages."

Organization of Transportation.

The proposed imposition of a tax on the importation of bananas has served to draw attention to the remarkable organization of the business of transporting bananas. The fruit is packed while green and rushed thousands of miles in a few days before it ripens. So carefully is this business of transportation organized that millions of bananas are brought from the tropics and sold so cheaply as to be within reach of all. As a precaution against loss due to the ripening of the fruit because of a delay in transportation, every fruit vessel is equipped with a wireless plant. If a fruit vessel be delayed, a wireless call is quickly sent out for help, and assistance is rushed to the disabled vessel, so that the shipment is expedited in every way.

Singers' Little Ways.

Caruso tells us that he knows a prima donna who occupies herself in trimming hats on the days when she sings, believing that this provides a distraction and rests her nerves. Another crosses herself repeatedly before taking her cue, and one famous singer known throughout Europe is in the habit of kissing her mother goodbye and receiving her blessing before going on to sing.

A well-known pianist used to carry a black cat about with her wherever she played. Doubtless there are many who are similarly superstitious, though they may not readily own to it.—Manchester Evening News.

JOKE CLEARLY ON LANDLORD

Tenant's Somewhat Mean Way of Getting His Contract for New York Flat Broken.

One owner of a big apartment house in New York learned a new trick to his sorrow. He did not mind the money loss as much as the neat way he "fell for it" led by the artful tenant.

It seems a man who had signed a year's lease on an apartment in this place bought a house at the beginning of the summer and wanted to move into it, but knew that the landlord could hold him to his contract if the flat was vacated. So he said nothing, but went to work cheerfully.

One Sunday morning about five, just when every one was enjoying his best nap, a hurdy-gurdy for canned music began operations in this wicked man's flat. Coon songs, ragtime, Irish rows, everything which would set the nerves on edge ground out in an ear-splitting noise that vibrated through the building. Tenants turned over, swore, got up and went to the telephone to call the landlord. Hot and heavy came in the complaints and the poor man rushed down to the apartment.

Dashing up to the room from which came the avalanche of sound, he was admitted.

"What in the name of the sacred codfish do you mean by kicking up all this racket on Sunday morning and rousing every one from sleep?" he demanded of the tenant of the offending flat.

"Well," replied the flat man with a provoking smile, "I guess it is my flat and the law says I can do as I wish in my own house."

"This is not your house," roared the landlord, "and I wish you to clear out at once."

"Certainly," replied the flat man, "I will move tomorrow. You are breaking the contract yourself. Many thanks—I have just bought a home in the suburbs."

REALLY USED COTTON BALES

Popular Idea Concerning Battle of New Orleans Has Been Found to Be Correct.

Interest in the slumbering cotton-bale theory of the battle of New Orleans was aroused by the finding of a water-color picture map of the original battle plan in an abandoned trunk in the cellar of the St. Charles hotel. Little is known about the drawing or the other contents of the trunk which has remained unnoticed for years in a dark corner.

Five veterans of the battle have added their signatures to the remarkable map to attest the fact that it is a true representation of the battle plan as made under the direction of Andrew Jackson by his military engineer, H. Lacotte. It shows a line of cotton bales which a marginal note says was 1,000 feet long with a prolongment extending 600 feet into the woods. Some historians deny the story about the use of cotton bales.

The five veterans who say they fought behind cotton bales were Joseph St. Cyr, Jean Lamothe, P. M. Lapice, Charles Raymond and Jean Gervais. Ten pictures of these men appear in the formation.

The finding of the picture is timely, says the New Orleans Item, as it will be of service for the staging of the battle, which is to be one of the leading features of the Exposition of Big Ideas.

Styles and Men.

This is—well, let's say amusing—this dictate of fashion that men must wear in 1914 clinging garments—isn't it? Because some of us must either adopt pads or endure the mockery of the masses while parading in the guise of human scarecrows or Punch and Judy shows—if clinging duds do master masculinity. And some of us will lose one large subject of conversation and laughter, for we won't any longer be able to criticise the garments of our sisters, wives and affinities. If any one consideration can do more than another to prevent the general adoption of tight styles for men this loss of critical opportunity is likely to be the thing, isn't it? It never will do to give ladies an opportunity to turn the batteries of laughter on the masculine half of humanity, will it? Of course a compromise may be arranged—but compromises seldom wear well, do they?—Detroit Free Press.

Tax on Windows.

If the tax on doors and windows disappears in France with the new fiscal reform, the archaeologists, say the Paris papers, will not regret it, for it was more than an artistic misdeed. When it was created more than a century ago the taxpayers, especially in the provinces, sought to diminish the imposed tax. Little rural windows were made out of the "grandes bourgeoises," and there was much talk of the detriment to art and health thereof. Today in replastering the walls of ancient edifices there are often discovered magnificent windows often of the renaissance covered in whole or in part; the mullions have been broken and the damage is irreparable. This was one incident in the window tax that the legislators of the revolutionary period certainly did not foresee.—Indianapolis News.

Promoters.

Thomas W. Lawson, at a dinner in Boston, said of promoters:

"Virtue is its own reward, but generosity is the thing to yield big profits. Why, hundreds of men become multi-millionaires just by generously looking up good things for other people to invest in, while keeping religiously out of them themselves."

SLIGHT CHANGE IN STANDING OF VALLEY LEAGUE

Through accident a mistake has crept into the standing of the Monongahela valley league clubs. Dunlevy clear to the cellar, is credited with having lost one more game than it has lost. STREET RAILWAYS TEAM SLAUGHTERS MONESSEN CROWD

The features of a baseball game played by the Pittsburg Street Railways team and a team from Monessen Tuesday morning at the local park was a sensational catch by Harris against the right field fence and the large score. The score was 20 to 4 in favor of the street railways club.

Thursday morning at 10 o'clock the Pittsburg Street Railways team will play the Castle Shannon-Penell team on the local grounds. This team leads the traction league of Pittsburg.

MERE MAN IS A "FEATURE" AT W. C. T. U. MEETING

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Tuesday afternoon in the "Pines" and took on the form of an outing. The regular business was transacted, after which a temperance talk was given by the leader, Mrs. C. M. Allen. An "unusual feature" of the meeting was a man in attendance, it being the genial superintendent of the playgrounds, Prof. I. T. Daniel. After much persuasion, he gave an intresting as well as instructive address on "How they deal in liquor in some of the Prohibition states." A lunch was served by the president after which the meeting adjourned to meet the first Tuesday of September.

COKEBURG IS VISITED BY A DAMAGING FIRE

In a fire of unknown origin about 8 o'clock Tuesday at Cokeburg a store and two residences were burned to the ground with practically all their contents. The store was owned by John Wessell and occupied by Albert Same while the residences were those of John Wessell and Ephriam Cheramy. The loss on the store building was $3,000 insured. The loss on the contents of the store was $2,000, the insurance having expired but a few weeks ago. The loss on the houses and contents was about $1,500 in each instance, the loss being covered by insurance.

Uncanny "Telautomatics."

A young American, John Hays Hammond, Jr., has recently been doing things down on the east coast of Massachusetts that would have been his death-warrant in the days of the Salem witches. From a hill-top overlooking Gloucester harbor he was directing daily, by means of invisible waves, the maneuvering of a sinister-looking craft of high speed which may soon develop into a very formidable instrument for coast defence. Mark you, no one is on board; the boat performs all of its amazing evolutions guided by a curious combination of vibrations having their source in an apparatus at Mr. Hammond's hand, far up the bluff! This sounds uncanny doesn't it? But it is one of the developments of a new branch of knowledge, the science of telautomatics, or the management from afar of mechanical operations. Telautomatics is going to do a large variety of astonishing things for us before long, and all of us should know something about this new wizardry.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Mr. Farmer, Do You Carry a Check Book?

The number of farmers who do is steadily increasing.

We never knew one to give up the practice after he had demonstrated its convenience.

Now, for instance, Mr. A and Mr. B, neighboring farmers have a deal, and in settling up, cannot make change. They must necessarily wait until one makes a trip to town, or they may find a neighbor who can help them out, all of which takes time. With a check book one may write the exact amount—not a cent more or less—and the deal is closed.

Of course we supply our customers with check books.
